

Greetings!

Solar Sonoma County is a small nonprofit whose mission is to reduce greenhouse gasses by facilitating the implementation of solar and energy efficiency measures throughout the country. During our two years of operation, we have already received two DOE grants and accomplished many things. Just some of our victories have included the Solar Fair, a county-wide permit for solar, advocacy to create and protect the SCEIP program which allows homeowners to install solar and to pay it over 20 years, workforce training and bilingual outreach.

We are poised for growth at the same time we are also creating and renewing our infrastructure. So, it's never dull! There are always things to do and everything we do makes a difference. Yes, there are some clerical duties for everyone here, but there is also a great chance to be involved at the grassroots level in an exciting program.

What you can expect from us:

A project that is yours to manage

An open learning environment

The chance to do something you have never done before

An opportunity to make mistakes – and to correct them, without reproach!

A mentor who values your time and efforts and wants to give back to you

What we would like from our interns:

A clear commitment to agreed goals

A minimum of one day a week for four months

Flexibility in doing whatever it takes to get the job done

Willingness to pitch in and help – even if it's not your project

An enthusiasm for learning, helping and achieving

An interest or passion for protecting our environment and learning about what we do

Come join us!

Warm regards,

Alison Healy, Executive Director
